

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving...

Tools for Thriving

This packet contains information on supporting burn survivors with techniques to feel confident in social situations.

1. STEPS: page 2
 - Self Talk
 - Tone of Voice
 - Eye Contact
 - Posture
 - Smile
2. RYR: pages 3-4
 - Rehearse your Responses
3. Staring: page 5
4. The Art of Conversation: page 6

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

1835 RW Berends Dr. SW
Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955

616.458.2773 / 1.800.0888.2876
fax: 616.458.2831
www.phoenix-society.org
info@phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

S-T-E-P-S to Social Comfort & Confidence

STEPS is a simple and effective “tool” for anyone affected by a burn injury. When meeting strangers, entering new social, work or school situations or going into public places, we can influence how people respond to us. By using STEPS every day, we project confidence and send the message to others that we are self-assured. It takes practice until it becomes authentic, natural, and part of your daily life. Try practicing in front of a mirror.

Smile
Warm/Kind

Posture
Up/Shoulders back

Eye Contact
LOOK 'em in the eye

Tone of Voice
Friendly/Enthusiastic

Self-Talk
What we say and believe

Imagine you are producing a TV commercial of yourself... use STEPS to produce the confident and comfortable image you want to project to your audience. YOU have control over the image you choose for your audience to view.

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:
The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society®
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

R Y R

Rehearse Your Responses

The “Tool” for Answering Questions

Rehearse Your Responses is a helpful “TOOL” to use when people ask questions about you or your loved one. People with burns and their family members often report feeling awkward, angry, or embarrassed when strangers ask questions about their burns and injury. R Y R is the “TOOL” to use.

Writing and memorizing a 3-sentence response to unexpected questions is a “TOOL” that increases your social comfort and confidence. By using R Y R you can approach social situations and respond calmly to questions with courtesy, kindness, and warmth. Practicing the R Y R “TOOL” in front of a mirror also helps you increase poise and confidence.

Example:

“I was burned in an auto crash. I’m doing a lot better now. Thanks for asking.” or “Thanks for your concern.”

The response of “Thanks for asking” or “Thanks for your concern” closes the conversation.

If the person requests more information and you choose not to continue talking or don’t want to provide details, politely respond with, “That’s all I care to discuss today; I’m sure you understand.” Smile warmly at the person and walk away.

Practice your R Y R in front of mirror.

Be sure to use your STEPS...

Self-Talk—“I can handle this easily and confidently,”

Speak in a friendly Tone of voice

Look ‘em in the Eye

Posture-Stand up straight

Give people a warm, confident Smile.

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:

The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society®
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

R Y R

Rehearse Your Responses

The “Tool” for Answering Questions

Write Your Own 3-Sentence “TOOL”

- 1. First sentence states: How you were burned or when you were burned.
Example: “I was burned in a house fire.” OR “I was burned a few months ago.”
- 2. Second sentence states: How you are doing now.
Example: “I’m getting better all the time and still having surgeries.” OR “I’m doing better now.”
- 3. Third sentence states: Ending the conversation.
Example: “Thanks for your concern.” OR “Thanks for asking.”

On a day you have low energy or just don’t feel up to questions:

Example: “I had a burn injury. I don’t care to discuss it.” Smile and walk on.

Remember: If a person requests more information and you choose not to talk more; politely respond with, “That’s all I care to discuss today; I’m sure you understand.” Smile warmly and walk away.

Practice your RYR in front of mirror.

Be sure to use your STEPS...

Self-Talk—“I can handle this easily and confidently,”

Speak in a friendly Tone of voice

Look ‘em in the Eye

Posture-Stand up straight

Give people a warm, confident Smile.

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:

The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

Staring Is a Fact of Life

Before a burn injury, you probably shopped, attended movies, and walked through malls rather anonymously. Life changes abruptly after a burn injury. After discharge from the hospital, there could be unwanted attention. Using the tools found in this packet can help both survivors and family members to have concrete skills to deal with these challenges.

It is a reality of life that looking different draws attention. Our thoughts and self-talk can create all kinds of rationale about why people stare. Patients and family members can keep in mind that it seems to be part of human nature to look at people with some type of difference. We look at people who are deaf and use sign language, people in wheelchairs, people wearing native costumes from another country, and people whose gait is uneven because of a disability. People often stare out of curiosity or concern, and very few stare to be rude.

It is difficult to change the public and their reactions to a burn injury, but we can take responsibility for our reactions to staring. Do not give power over your life to people you do not know and may never see again. This makes strangers more important than you are. Continuing to focus on whether people are staring at us prevents us from living in the present. Being fully involved in life without concerns about what others think or do increases the joy of life's journey. By using these tools, you will increase your social comfort and confidence when someone stares.

Some places where staring may occur include: while standing in lines, sitting in restaurants, shopping, and walking among large crowds. These activities may seem awkward and scary at first. Until one is more comfortable and confident, taking a family member or friend along may ease anxiety.

Staring

When someone stares, the easiest and fastest way to stop the uncomfortable moment is to use the following "Tools":

Stand up straight, look the person in the eye, smile, and confidently say, "Hi, how are you doing?" or "Hi, nice day, isn't it?" or any friendly "small talk" that feels natural to you.

The person staring usually responds in an equally friendly way, speaks to you, and the staring ends. By smiling and speaking to someone who is staring, you change the "energy" of the interaction and the person sees you as a person rather than focusing on your burn injury.

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:

The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

Conversation Distracters... the “ART” of changing the subject

Removing the attention away from your burn injury to another subject...develop several “conversation starters” that you memorize and use.

- “That’s a very nice shirt (dress, sweater, coat etc.) you are wearing. Did you buy it around here?”
- “Do you shop here a lot?” (if it’s a hardware, super market, store in a mall)
- “We’re really having some great (or terrible) weather today, aren’t we?”
- “I really like this restaurant. How about you?”
- “How ‘bout those Cowboys?”

Prepare and Practice...

these life situations or use one that has happened to you.

A lady at the grocery store sees you, walks over to you and kindly asks, “Oh, I bet you were in a bad accident.”

Walking to school, a child says, “You really look bad!”

In the check out line at a department store, a girl and her mom keep staring at you.

A student across from you in class asks, “What did you do to yourself?”

In a restaurant dining with your family, someone yells, “Halloween is over. Take off your mask.”

As you walk down the aisle while boarding a bus, train, or plane, several people take a long look at you.

At a mall someone walks up and suddenly asks, “Hey, what happened to you?”

While waiting in a medical office, you notice several people staring at you.

What tools would you use in the above situations?

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:

The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org

Phoenix Society
for burn survivors

Beyond Surviving... Tools for Thriving

It Starts With YOU!

Introducing Behavioral "TOOLS" to Patients and Families

An important aspect of patient care is introducing the topic of community reentry and the potential challenges for the patient and family. Some "teachable moments" appear daily when giving medication, offering a snack, a trip off the unit to x-ray or later in the evening when the unit may be quieter. Below are some examples to assist you to develop your own personal delivery style.

INTRODUCING THE INITIAL "YOU'LL BE GOING HOME SOON" CONVERSATION

Example:

"Mr. Brown, you know in a few days you'll be discharged. I was wondering how are you feeling about going home? (wait for the answer) Some people have found that leaving the burn center is a little scary. For one thing, you will have to adjust to doing more for yourself. The other adjustment is that you'll be noticed a lot more than before because of your burns (the bandages, pressure garments.) Some people may ask what happened and others will look at you or even stare...because most people just haven't known someone with a burn so they are a little curious and compassionate. We do have some "TOOLS" to help you so it isn't such a challenge. Would it be OK if we discussed them now?"

HOW TO INTRODUCE THE STARING "TOOL" TO PATIENTS AND FAMILIES

Example:

"Mrs. Jones, when you go home, it's important for you to start going out to do your usual activities. This is important for your total recovery. Some people in the community have not seen someone with a burn injury before. They may be so curious about your injury that they may stare at you. People don't mean to be rude. We want you to be prepared and have a "TOOL" to help you to manage any staring that may occur. It will help you feel in control of each social situation, feel more at ease wherever you go and not be surprised. Would you like me to show the "TOOL" to you now?"

HOW TO INTRODUCE THE RYR "TOOL" TO PATIENTS AND FAMILIES

Example:

"Mr. Gomez, soon you'll be going home, and I wanted you to be prepared to go out in public again. Because many people don't know anything about burns, they may come up and ask about your injury. People don't mean to be rude; they're usually just curious and compassionate. Sometimes people may approach you in the grocery store, walking through a mall, or even at a restaurant. I want to give you a "TOOL" to help you with questions called Rehearse Your Responses or RYR. We find if patients are prepared in advance with just 3 simple sentences, you'll feel more at ease and not be taken off guard. Would you like me to go over it with you now?"

HOW TO INTRODUCE THE STEPS "TOOL" TO PATIENTS AND FAMILIES

Example:

"Bob, when people leave the burn center and begin going out in the community, sometimes they feel a little uncomfortable at first because of the attention from people. How you present yourself will affect how people respond to you. For example, if I came in today with my shoulders slumped, had no eye contact with you, and didn't smile, you and I would have a hard time communicating because you would feel uncomfortable with my behavior. So, we have a "TOOL" called STEPS that are behavioral skills that can really help you project confidence in yourself. I'd like to go over the STEPS "TOOL" now if that's ok?"

©Copyright by the Phoenix Society for Burn Survivors. Based on work of Barbara Kammerer Quayle, M.A.

Contact us for more information:

The Phoenix Society, Inc. | 1835 R W Berends Dr. SW | Grand Rapids, MI 49519-4955 | 800.888.BURN | www.phoenix-society.org